ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL.

History and Description.

St. Paul's School is the direct result of a movement to establish in Beaufort a school that would afford the youth of the town and county an adequate opportunity for a broad school training—of hand and heart, as well as of head—that would enable them to realize the larger opportunities of life and to render more efficient service in the home and in the State.

About a half-century ago the Rev. D. V. Van Antwerp came to Beaufort and began his efforts to reestablish a parish where old St. John's parish had flourished in colonial days. In connection with this work he saw the need of a good school and forthwith gave of his energy freely to establish such a school. This was the beginning of St. Paul's Parish and St. Paul's School, and the present St. Paul's is but a restoration of the loving work of Mr. Van Antwerp, Mrs. James C. Davis, Miss Elizabeth Robinson and others.

In 1875 Mrs. Geffroy took up the work, continuing the life-work of her mother (Mrs. Davis), and since that time a continuous effort has been alive to build up and improve the school and push the work forward.

The school had grown gradually but steadily under various faithful teachers when, in 1899, it was decided to undertake the erection of the present school building and to enlarge the scope of the school, which had then for some years been prospering under the charge of Miss Emma Manson. This was done and the Rev. Thos. P. Noe, Rector of the Parish, became the first Principal of the enlarged school, while Miss Manson continued as his assistant.

Having at that time two teachers, a few dozen pupils, and no adequate school building, the school has grown to its present condition, when it has its own well-furnished buildings, excellently equipped for the work which is being attempted; and with more than 200 pupils and a faculty of twelve it stands ready to do well that for which it was established.

With the completion of the Dormitory in 1906 the boarding department, which had been growing for several years, during which out-of-town pupils had been cared for in some of the homes of the town, was transferred to its own specially prepared quarters, and became one of the features of St. Paul's.

Location.

Beaufort, a seaport town of 2,500 people, the county-seat of Carteret County, is situated on a large bay facing the Atlantic Ocean, commanding from its front a splendid water view. The abundant sea-breeze and the proximity of the Gulf stream make the climate delightful all the year round, and as the healthiness of the place has long been well-known, the town is growing in favor both as a winter and a summer resort. In addition to the means of communication by water, the Norfolk & Southern Railway affords a direct connection with inland points.

The U. S. Marine Biological Laboratory, one of the finest in the country, is situated at Beaufort, and this brings the school in touch with a great department of scientific research.

The Buildings and Grounds.

The school grounds face on Ann street, occupying almost a block between Orange and Moore, enjoying a south front on the town's chief residence street and getting the benefit of the fine ocean breeze. St. Paul's Church, built in 1857, is in the centre of the block, surrounded by the school buildings and playgrounds, and its presence emphasizes the opportunity for the deepening of spiritual life in the school.

The school building is situated to the east of the church. It is a three-story building built in 1900 of North Carolina pine, the interior finished with the natural wood under oil, and contains five large class-rooms, equipped with modern desks and the other requisities which add to the efficiency of the work; a very attractive library, containing 3,000 volumes, though many of the books are of minor value; a large kindergarten room, well equipped; a small but attractive music room; an office; and the commodious Assembly Hall (on the first floor), where the school meets morning and noon for devotional exercises.

Watson Hall.

To the west of the church, the Dormitory Building was erected in 1906. When completed the Dormitory Group will include two dormitories facing south, and a connecting dining-room Building joining them in the rear. The present building, however, consists only of the East Building and Dining Hall, leaving the West Building to be provided later. In the Dormitory each floor contains accommodations for fifteen pupils with the teacher, who presides over the floor. Each room is furnished with white enameled beds, ward-robe, and chiffonier, while the sanitary stationery washstand, with cold water in each room, adds much to the comfort. There is also on each hall a private sitting-room for the reception of individual guests. The building is equipped with adequate bath-rooms, with hot and cold water, and is lighted with gas throughout.

The dining-room provides accommodations for 100 boarders, with pantries and kitchen adjoing it in a supplementary building. Above this, on second floor, is the teachers' dormitory, with nine rooms.

The third floor of the two buildings is thrown into one and the large Physical Culture hall for girls and boys is located there, also the Cooking Department, and the Study Hall.

In the rear of the church, a little to the west, is the Work Shop, a plain one-story frame building, the home of the Printing and Carpentry Departments. Twelve years ago this building formed the entire equipment of St. Paul's School.

To the rear of the buildings is the large, airy campus, affording excellent opportunity for exercise and proper school sports.

Life at St. Paul's

The aim at St. Paul's is to train boys and girls for larger usefulness in life when they have grown to manhood and womanhood. Every effort is made to surround them with influences, intellectual, social and spiritual, that tend to broaden and enrich life and to develop character. A healthy intercourse between teachers and pupils is cultivated and offers great opportunities for moulding ideals.

The class-work occupies the pupils from 8:45 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., with an hour for dinner at noon. Besides the opportunity afforded for exercise in connection with school work, special out-door exercise is a part of the school life, thus keeping the body vigorous and healthy. As the spiritual life of the pupil is most important, the pupils are required also to attend Church and Sunday School regularly.

An Infirmary is provided for cases of sickness, affording a means of isolating the sick and for providing them with every attention.

School Work.

The school year is divided into two terms, but written and oral examinations are given four times a year, enabling the teacher to grade the pupil and the pupil to put a correct estimate on his or her work. Reports are sent to parents and scholarship-donors quarterly. It is most important that pupils should be present at the very beginning of the session for new classes are then formed and it is very difficult for a pupil to make up lost time or work, and especially hard for new or backward pupils.

The Literary Society.

The Nu Pi Gamma Literary Society meets every Friday evening during the school year. Its memberships includes the boarding pupils, the Kindergarten training class, and all the pupils of the sixth to the tenth grades, inclusive. The programs consists of recitations, declamations, readings, vocal and instrumental music, and, occasionally, debates. The meetings are conducted entirely by the students; although the faculty show their interest in the work by regular attendance, and by serving on committees to which they may be elected or appointed.

Girls' Friendly Society.

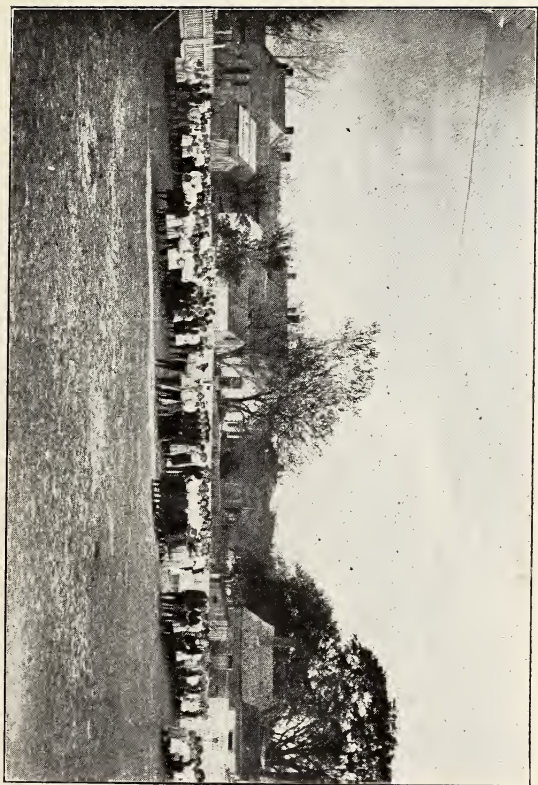

A Girls' Friendly Society was organized in the fall of 1908, which now has some twenty full members and a number of probationers, among them several girls who are not pupils of the school. The Society meets weekly. Mrs. Geffroy is the secretary.

St. Paul's School Auxiliary.

In February, 1909, the St. Paul's School Auxiliary was organized, its membership consisting of the faculty and the boarding pupils. Its object is missionary study and work. Meetings are held bi-monthly.

Music.

The National Graded Course of Piano Instructions is used in the Music Department. Two half-hour lessons a week are given each pupil, and those who have not a piano at home, practice an hour daily at the school. There are also weekly class lessons in music history and harmony. To accustom the pupils to playing before an audience, each is requested to play at least once during the year at a meeting of the Literary Society.

THE SCHOOL ASSEMBLED ON THE GROUNDS.

Course of Study.

The Course of Study has been arranged with the double object of preparing for college and of training for the active struggle of life; and it will be found broad and effective. The St. Paul's diploma admits without examination to the University of North Carolina and to the University of the South. In addition to the Latin and English courses, with their usual branches, the school is especially proud of its manual courses.

Manual training is a regular part of the school work, and all pupils are required to take it. Beginning with the paperfolding and card-board modeling of the lower grades, giving skill to the hands and accuracy to the eye, more advanced training is given, until the girls complete courses in Cooking and Dressmaking, and the boys in Carpentry, and also in Printing, if they wish.

The course of study includes two years in the Kindergarten, four years in the Primary School, four years in the Grammar School, and two years in the High School. The completion of the High School course, including four years' work in Latin, entitles the pupil to the school diploma. Latin is required for one year, after that it is optional, with the understanding that the pupil completing the course (without Latin), will receive, upon graduation, a certificate stating this fact, and not the school diploma.

Scholarships.

The regular tuition in the School is from $1 to $3 per month, but as a very large part of the pupils' parents are not able to pay this tuition the school is maintained in great part by scholarships, which are supported by individuals and organizations.

It was decided in the beginning that $10 should constitute an annual scholarship, and this amount was at the time sufficient to cover a pupil's full tuition for a year. As the work progressed and it was necessary to add higher grades the cost of tuition necessarily advanced, but the scholarships are still kept at $10, both because this amount is within the gift of many organizations which wish to extend aid and yet who could scarcely give more, and because the purpose of the scholarships being to offer only absolutely necessary help, the pupil who is given only partial aid is encouraged to do everything possible for his or her own support and to gradually become independent.

There are two classes of these scholarships: (1) ANNUAL; (2) PERPETUAL.

(1) ANNUAL SCHOLARSHIPS are maintained by the yearly gift of some interested friend, either individual or organization, who either makes a stated pledge to support the scholarship from year to year, or who renews this pledge from year to year. Some givers support several scholarships and most of them are maintained continuously. The life and prosperity of St. Paul's is intimately connected with these scholarships, and until an entirely adequate number have been founded every increase in their number will mean added efficiency for the school.

A CLASS IN THE WORK-SHOP.

(2) PERPETUAL SCHOLARSHIPS are created by the gift of $200 for scholarship purposes. The principal is invested as a nucleus for a school endowment, which it is hoped will eventually be established, and the interest is applied to the maintenance of a scholarship. These scholarships are for the most part memorials, the first having been established by loving parents, who were also friends of the school, in memory of a little boy who had been taken from them.

There are at present seven of these scholarships, as follows:

The Reginald Zabriskie Scholarship.

The Helen R. Zabriskie Scholarship.

The William Wade Scholarship.

The Armond DeRosset Meares Scholarship.

The Bishop Watson Memorial Scholarship.

The Thomas O'Tongue Scholarship.

The Mary Murray Scholarship.

Efforts are now on foot to create a scholarship in memory of Rev. T. M. N. George.

Conduct.

Since the interests of all pupils must be considered, a girl or boy who exercises a harmful influence upon her or his companions, or whose general demeanor shows that she or he has no intention of obeying the rules of the household, can not be allowed to remain in the school.
